V International Scientific Conference

Problems and challenges of Transport Geography

Goals

The main objective of the conference is to create a proper environment for scientific discussion focused around theoretical, methodological and empirical problems of transport geography. It will also be a great opportunity to identify some research challenges while ensuring closer integration between scientific and research circles in Poland as it used to take place during historical meetings of transport geography in Arłamów, and Polańczyk and in recent years in Gdańsk and Łódź.

Participants

We hereby invite all researchers, scientists, PhD students, students and enthusiasts being into transport and communication.

Language

Papers can be delivered in Polish, English and Russian.

Dates

Date of the conference:
7-8 May 2020
Registration:
Until 3 April 2020
Deadline for submitting articles:
Continuous acceptance

Place

Institute of Geography
and Spatial Management,
Jagiellonian University in Kraków,
ul. Gronostajowa 7, 30-387 Kraków

Conference Sub-themes

1. New research concepts in transport geography
2. Spatial transformations of transport and communication networks
3. Innovations and progress in transport and communication
4. Challenges of sustainable development
5. Transport and communication networks management
6. Energy efficiency and safety in transport
7. Research perspectives in transport geography

Publication

Articles based on the papers delivered during the conference will be published a quarterly entitled Transport Geography Papers of Polish Geographical Society. The journal is published by the Transport Geography Commission of the Polish Geographical Society and issued by Bernardinum Publishing House. An electronic version of the journal can be accessed via Scientific Journals Online managed by the Jagiellonian University. In 2017 the journal was given 70.09 points by Index Copernicus.

Maintenance of traditional meetings in Polańczyk and Arłamów

The conference in Kraków refers to a rich scientific heritage of the Transport Geography Commission of the Polish Geographical Society. In 1992 geographers focused on transport and communication met in Lublin. During this meeting, on Professor Krystyna Warakomska's initiative, an idea of creating the Transport Geography Commission was submitted to the Polish Geographical Society. The Commission was set up in 1994 during a conference in Polańczyk. Professor Teofil Lijewski, representing the Institute of Geography and Spatial Organisation of the Polish Academy of Sciences, became the first chairman of the Commission. All participants taking part in the conference in Polańczyk agreed that there should be scientific meetings organised annually which ensure closer integration between scientific and research circles in Poland through exchanging views, experiences, publications and research results. The journal entitled Transport Geography Papers of Polish Geographical Society was a direct result of these meetings and it was regularly published in the period of 1996-2011, with a significant involvement of Professor Jerzy Kitowski from the University of Rzeszów, who took over the position of the Commission Chairman after Professor Teofil Lijewski had left. Other Management Board Members, Professor Stanisław Koziarski from the University of Opole and Professor Tomasz Komornicki representing the Institute of Geography and Spatial Organisation Polish Academy of Sciences, made a significant contribution to the work of the Commission. In April 2016 a new leadership of the Transport Geography Commission was elected. Since then, Arkadiusz Kołoś, PhD, from the Jagiellonian University is the Commission Chairman, Marcin Połom, PhD, from the University of Gdańsk holds the position of the Secretary and Professor Tomasz Komornicki from the Institute of Geography and Spatial Organisation PAS in Warsaw is the Management Board Member. A series of transport geographers meetings was resumed in 2016 in Gdańsk in a refreshed formula with a significant participation of the University of Gdańsk staff headed by Marcin Połom, PhD. After three conferences organised in Gdańsk in 2016, 2017 and 2018, the last meeting took place in Łódź in 2019.

Field Trip

Like at every conference, also this year we would like to invite you to a field trip. We plan a ride on a train of Jędrzejów narrow gauge railway line and a visit to a town of Pińczów. From a train window we will be able to see a unique wooden construction which is over hundred years old and thanks to which the line can cross the Nida river valley. In Pińczów we will have a chance to visit this picturesque historical town, which in the past was an important cultural centre, called Sarmatian Athens.

Recommended hotels

As Kraków has a vast offer of accommodation facilities we present only hotels which are located in the vicinity of the Jagiellonian University III Campus where the conference will take place. The campus is located in South-Western part on Kraków, about 30 min by tram from the main railway station in the city centre.
